the confidence interval for the difference in means provides an estimate of the absolute difference in means of the outcome variable of interest between the comparison groups. Therefore, it could be of benefit in the treatment of type-II diabetes, and may aid weight loss.